Tim Kinnaird a former Norfolk children's doctor, who narrowly missed winning this years television 2010 MasterChef after reaching the final, will be working alongside Nigel Raffles of St Benedicts Restaurant. Nigel and Tim will host three gourmet evenings providing a unique experience for special customers.

Tim's passion for desserts and quality food certainly wowed the judges.

Tim said "Following my appearance on MasterChef I've been working hard to build a career in food. St Benedicts Restaurant is somewhere I've always enjoyed as a customer. To work in the kitchen with Nigel is a great opportunity and something I'm very excited about."

"My whole experience of being on the program has been phenomenal, having seen what the other competitors cooked to get though to the final six, it was a tremendous feeling. The quality of cooking in the room that day was amazing - and quite inspiring as well."

Nigel and Jayne Raffles have been restaurateurs in Norwich for over twenty years and now run four restaurants each providing a different dining style. Nigel has been cooking for over twenty five years in establishments such as Le Gavroche with Albert Roux, The Intercontinental on Park Lane and Hintlesham Hall, learning his craft so he can give you a quality dining experience. He is delighted to have a chance to work with Tim. These evenings will give you a chance to enjoy a spectacular evening of gastronomic delights as well as having a chance to talk and ask questions about the menu or just ask Tim about his experiences from MasterChef.

Tickets are limited to 50 places for each evening and cost just £40.00 per person to include a welcome drink, canapés and a three course dinner.

Dates confirmed are: July 7th July 13th and 7th September 2010.
